About: Layton Vision Foundation

- Irreversible blindness is a tragic and feared outcome of many eye diseases. Eye health impacts education, employment, quality of life, and many other sustainable development goals.
- Professor Chris Layton established the Layton Vision Foundation in 2016 with a mission in mind: One cure, one vision, for everyone.
- The Layton Vision Foundation is bringing hope to people affected by vision loss and blindness.
- By supporting our medical and clinical research, it is helping to create a brighter future for the community and generations to come. Clinical research is essential to help understand vision loss, find better treatments and prevent eye disease.

About: LVF Research Centre

- The LVF Research Centre was founded in 2013 and is currently located within the Translational Research Institute, Woolloongabba.
- LVF Research Centre is one of Queensland's fastest growing and most productive eye research centres.
- The research team is currently studying AAV-mediated gene therapies for the treatment of eye diseases and has developed promising candidates for age-related macular degeneration and intraocular inflammation. These conditions affect a high percentage of the world population and rank among the leading causes of blindness and visual loss worldwide.

About: Director of Clinical Research

- Professor Christopher (Chris) Layton is a private Clinical Ophthalmologist, a national leader in innovative ophthalmology and has a special interest in clinical education.
- His expertise is in macular disease, lens surgery and minimally invasive glaucoma interventions. He holds a PhD in diabetic retinopathy from Oxford University. Dr Chris is a Rhodes Scholar and founding director of the LVF Research Centre.
- Working internationally and being immersed in the eye health industry from both a clinical and research position, Dr Chris understands the global vision crisis and how it affects every day lives.
- While there has been significant public health action, increased awareness and availability of eye care services, the rise in population growth and aging is contributing to the number of people suffering from vision impairment, which will triple by 2050.

Make a difference to eradicate blindness

- Someone who's irreversibly blind, will never see their grandchildren, never be able to read again, never be able to see the television: their whole way of interacting with the world as a human – is lost. On its own it's a real problem.
- Layton Vision Foundation is bringing hope to people affected by vision loss and blindness. Support medical and clinical research to create a brighter future for the community and generations to come. Clinical research is essential to help understand vision loss, find better treatments and prevent eye disease.
- Your sponsorship contribution goes to preventing and curing blindness.

We do understand that every organisation has different needs when it comes to marketing. While we offer these standard sponsorship opportunities, we are happy to discuss your individual needs and other bespoke options that may be available.
